The Calgary Herald publishes a very fancy editorial and directory in Calgary for 1894, which accompanies its issue of January 29th.

The fire tank at the Hudson's Bay store was added this morning from the tanks at the Imperial bank. These were at once re-filled from the river.

REAL Edmonton winter weather during the past week. Good sleighing and bright, mild, calm days. Almost, but not thawing. Ideal winter weather.

The lodge room in the upper story of the Taylor block will be occupied for the first time on Tuesday night. The lower story will be occupied about February 10th.

The funeral of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Garrety took place on Saturday afternoon at St. Joachim's cemetery. Rev. Father Fonguet conducted the funeral services.

FREE PRESS: The death of Gordon P. McMillan, son of Major Alex McMillan, inspector of Indian agencies, is announced from Asheville, N. C. The young man was aged 22 years.

The Winnipeg and Hudson's Bay railway company is applying to parliament for an extension of time for the completion of the road to the Saskatchewan river until 1896, and for changing the name of the company. The notice is signed by Andrew Strang as secretary. Mr. Strang is a brother of councillor C. F. Strang of Edmonton.

Saturday Night says: "Word has been received by Capt. Gulpin Brown of his appointment to an inspectorship in the Northwest mounted police. Capt. Brown's experience with General Roberts, whom he served as A. D. C. on the famous march to Gaudahar, has eminently fitted him for such a post as he has obtained."

D. MALONEY of St. Albert received three letters recently from the county Kilkenny, Ireland, making enquiries regarding the Edmonton district as a field for settlement. One family named Keogh leaves for Ontario shortly, to come to Edmonton in the spring. These enquiries are results of the work of Geo. Leary, Dominion government immigration agent.

CALGARY Herald: At a late meeting of the Manitoba curling club, a letter was read from the Edmonton curling club objecting to its incorporation with the Calgary district, owing to the distance and inconvenient attending play. On motion of John McKechnie the resolution creating the united district was rescinded, and the two districts were left as before.

The following is the number of births, deaths and marriages registered in the Edmonton registration office during the past four years, the figures being furnished by St. George Jellett, district registrar: Births—1890, 129; 1891, 126; 1892, 60; 1893, 108. Total 414. Marriages—1890, 25; 1891, 39; 1892, 33; 1893, 48. Total 145. Deaths—1890, 42; 1891, 54; 1892, 33; 1893, 77. Total 206. This return is not as full as might be, as owing to the immense area of the district and the widely separated settlements many events are not registered.

The Regina Standard, dealing editorially with the question of the proposed cancellation of the certificates of teachers who have not normal school certificates says: Our contention in respect to Mr. Goggin is that he should personally conduct the normal school sessions and that short sessions should be held in the more remote parts for the convenience of third class teachers who cannot afford to go a great distance to attend a session. This is what Mr. Goggin did in Manitoba—a province covering an area less than one-fourth of that of these Territories. We claim too that the salary which we pay Mr. Goggin is too great to be paid for mere office work. He was engaged as a specialist to do special work and he must be permitted to do it. Until sufficient time had elapsed to enable him to hold such sessions the former certificate might be extended.

Mrs. H. DODGLES of Calgary, returned home on Friday's train.

The old road from Edmonton to Victoria north of the Saskatchewan is not travelled this winter, all travel going by way of Fort Saskatchewan and Egg Lake.

Word was received by last mail that S. B. Culbert, who was in the BULLETIN employ in 1887 and 1888, had died in Santa Fe, New Mexico, whither he had come from Ontario, on account of lung trouble.

Dr. Wilson and J. F. Adamson returned from a visit to Whitefish Lake yesterday. Many of the Indians have been suffering from influenza, but not many fatal cases have occurred. Dr. Wilson was laid up for a week with the same malady while at Whitefish Lake.

A correspondent in the Sturgeon settlement writes: "It might be of some interest to your readers to know that the location of the school of the recently formed Broadview school district, of which Messrs. Peters, Rye and Hall were elected trustees, has not yet been decided on, and Mr. Rye proposes to build the school on trucks, so that it can be moved to all desirable points in the section. He expects to meet with a ready approval."

The Calgary Herald says of Mr. Osler's lectures on the Northwest in Scotland: Lecturing at Little Brechin in his native county of Forfarshire lately, with the Hon. C. M. Ramsay in the chair and Lord Dalhousie among the audience, he dwelt especially upon the advantages of the Edmonton district. All the kinds of crops that grow in Scotland would, he said, grow and prosper remarkably well near the northernmost limit of wheat cultivation. Of all districts in America this is the one which Mr. Osler recommends to settlers with limited means. A man can, he says, select his 160 acres of free land, with no trees to dig out and no stones to unearth, and with nothing more to do than put in the plough. It is noteworthy that the great majority of the tenant farmer delegates of this year agree with Mr. Osler in especially commending the Edmonton district.

The telegraph line on the C. & E. between Edmonton and Calgary was down for a couple of days last week and of course had to wait until Thursday's train came along so that the train crew could fix it up. This line goes down with annoying frequency, quite in contrast with the government line from Edmonton eastward, which has practically never been down between Edmonton and Pitt since it was put up. The reason of the difference is very simple. On the government line the wire is No. 6, galvanized, and it is strung on 30 poles to the mile. The C. & E. line is No. 8 wire, considerably smaller than the No. 6, and it is strung on 15 poles to the mile. This is what makes the difference between perfect stability and continual breaking. Of course the railway company can put up any line they please. The above facts are given merely to show that it is quite possible to build a line that will stand even in this climate.

PASTOR H. E. WISE of the Baptist church in Calgary, arrived late on Saturday night to take part in the dedicatory services of the new Baptist church in Edmonton. He had quite an exciting trip from Calgary. He took Thursday's train, expecting to reach Edmonton the same night. At Inisfail, while the train stopped, he called upon a friend whose home was close to the station; and under assurances from the friend that the train would not start for ten minutes sat down to have a cup of tea. But there was a mistake somewhere, and before the tea was finished the train gently glided away from the station. The pastor seized his hat and ran as he never ran before. But although he gained rapidly on the train he could not stand the pace and soon saw the last car disappear slowly around a bend. His friend at once hitched up a team and drove to Red Deer the next station twenty miles away, hoping to catch the train there, as it delayed half an hour for dinner; and again secured an excellent view of the last car as it climbed the grade out of town, leaving the pastor still one hundred miles short of his destination. But now his blood was up, and securing a lively rig he drove the hundred miles over the old Calgary trail, on Thursday afternoon, Friday and Saturday, arriving not much the worse for his trip and with a large stock of valuable experience. It did not improve matters when he was informed that at Inisfail the train was just going to stop for him when he gave up the race.

EDMONTON BULLETIN, JANUARY 29th, 1894.

NEWSPAPER BUSINESS.

The BULLETIN begs to call the attention of its patrons to the notice which appears above, and in doing so takes the liberty of saying a few words as to the cost and value respectively of a newspaper, particularly of a country newspaper, and more particularly of a pioneer newspaper.

As every one knows it is the business of a newspaper to collect and distribute news. If this statement covered the case there would be no occasion for the existence of any but the city paper, which by reason of the supporting power of the thousands, hundreds of thousands or millions of people within the range of its influence—which is not only the city in which it is published but the towns and country districts transacting business with it and therefore interested in its affairs, as the city is interested in the affairs of those with whom it deals—is enabled to give incomparably more news for less money than the paper which not having so large a field, and therefore a smaller support, cannot avail itself of the same wholesale means of collecting news or the labor saving appliances which allow the reproduction of that news at the lowest possible cost.

But just as the news of one city and its surroundings is not what chiefly interests another city of like size with its surroundings—which therefore supports another paper or set of papers—so the news that is furnished by the city paper is not the news that the resident of a country town chiefly wishes to hear. It is of greater and more immediate importance to him to know even the minor events that are occurring in his own neighborhood than to know those that occur in the far off city, or other country place. This news he cannot get in the city paper, and the necessity for its supply is the cause of the existence of the country newspaper. To supply the news of the locality fully and fairly is the business of the country paper and if it does that it gives as good value for its cost as the city paper does, although the amount of news given and the importance of the events noted are not nearly as great. It would be as unreasonable to ask from a country paper the quantity of reading matter and news that is found in a city paper for the same price as it would be to expect nails to be made at the blacksmith shop as cheaply as they are turned out at the factory. Iron work that can be made at a factory can be made much more cheaply than in a blacksmith shop, but some kinds of work must be done at the blacksmith shop, and the necessity for that work is such as to warrant the payment of prices far higher than would be paid for a like amount of factory work. But a newspaper has to perform other work than merely furnish news. It is expected to hold opinions and to advance arguments in support of those opinions. Its opinions and arguments are expected to bear directly on the welfare of the locality in which it is published. In this department the greater value of the local paper to its locality as compared with the value of the city paper to the same locality can be clearly seen. No doubt if the city paper could be induced to advocate the interests of any single one of the outlying towns in range of its influence it could do more good than the local paper published there could. But that is not what the city paper is published for. It is expected to pay chief attention to the interests of the city, and if it deals with outlying places at all it is expected by its chief patrons to do so only from the interests of the city of its publication. If the people of any locality want their interests to be pushed through the press it must be by papers devoted solely to their interest—or in other words by papers which they support. The value of the country paper to its subscribers is not to be reckoned by a comparison of cost with city papers, but by considering whether it fulfils its mission of gathering local news and advocating local interests satisfactorily.

If the paper of an ordinary country town has a clearly defined and useful field in which it gives value for its cost, much more so has the paper published in a pioneer town; one whose growth, if not its very existence, depends upon its being kept prominently and favorably before the public. It is far more than ordinarily important that its news should be chronicled in such shape that it will be widely read, understood and believed, and that its interests shall be advocated with a single eye to its welfare and with all possible ability and vigor. The newspaper of a town is its outward manifestation. It is what those who have not seen the place will judge it by and will form their impressions of it from. If it is bright, newsy, and vigorous, it will create a favorable impression and outsiders may size up the town and country as better than they look and will have confidence in them accordingly. In this connection the BULLETIN is not too modest to claim that while Edmonton is not by any means the largest town in the Northwest, this paper is second to none in the Territories in appearance and in quality and quantity of news matter furnished, and is therefore, relatively at least, the best paper in the Territories. This statement is made to show that it is playing its part in the upbuilding of this town and country, and therefore is worthy of the liberal patronage which it receives, for which it claims to give full value.

So much as to the value of a newspaper to the community at large. Its value to subscribers need not be dwelt upon, as that is to a great extent self-evident. Every person wants to hear the news. It is to his interest that he should know what is going on around him. To find this out men gather in shops, stores and hotels or travel miles and miles to each others houses and spend hours in discussing a tenth part of the interesting items that they would find in each issue of a well conducted local paper; which would not occupy ten minutes to read. The man who reads and keeps posted has a great advantage over the man who does not.

While the value of a subscription is almost self-evident, in bulk of paper if nothing else, the value of newspaper advertising is not so clear. To many business men it seems like paying out money for nothing to keep a notice of their business in the columns of the paper. The value of an advertisement varies with circumstances. But it may be taken as a general principle that a business announcement is of like value to the putting up of a prominent sign, the erection of attractive premises or the occupation of a good stand. It would not pay a peanut dealer to occupy premises or a situation such as would be necessary for the dry goods merchant; and just so one line of business will not get as good a return from extensive advertising as another; or an amount of advertising that would be good business for one firm would be extravagance on the part of another. It must be evident, however, that if it is an assistance to business to hang out a sign, to have suitable premises, or to occupy a good position, it cannot be less an assistance to keep the business prominently before the eyes of present or prospective customers by means of an advertisement in the newspaper. Of course the value of the newspaper as an advertising medium depends greatly upon whether or not the people whom it is desired to reach read it, upon the number of readers, whether they read it with interest or not, and upon the method in which the advertisements are displayed. Given the favorable side of the conditions mentioned and there cannot be any other means of bringing a business to the favorable attention of the public equal to the newspaper, for the money which it costs. Especially is this the case in a district such as this, where new settlers are coming in and new businesses are being established. The days when every one knew every one else, and people knew more about each others business than they did about their own, are gone, and the business man is compelled either to advertise through the newspaper or take some more expensive means of keeping his business in the public eye. The value of newspaper advertising depends more upon the value of the medium used and the method in which the advertising is handled than upon its actual cost; for money may be thrown away in advertising as easily as in anything else.

DUNDEE COURIER.

The letters of Andrew Osler, special commissioner of the Dundee Courier, regarding the Northwest, and published in the paper from time to time, are very interesting. The two last received contain Mr. Osler's impressions of the country from Calgary to Edmonton, with some remarks upon his arrival here. Space forbids the giving of the letters in full.

On leaving Calgary Mr. Osler remarks upon the level nature of the country and the ease and cheapness of railway construction. "We frequently cross rivers of considerable size, all flowing eastward to join the Saskatchewan on its way to Hudson's Bay, but even the rivers do not detract from the levelness of the prospect, there being no valleys along their sides, the waters having merely cut a deep gully for a channel through the soft soil, and these being generally spanned by steel girders. The railway track is continuous along the flat surface with scarcely any cuttings or embankments."

Of the railway he says: "I thought the construction very inadequate and unsafe, but it is the same throughout all America, and, in my opinion, in all that great continent there is scarcely a mile of railway that our Board of Trade would allow a train to run upon." He found the rate of speed slow and the running very irregular as compared with railway travelling in the old country.

Of the Red Deer country he says: "The Red Deer country may be said to extend from 46 miles north of Calgary to 39 miles north of the Red Deer river, some 80 miles in extent, and extending east and west of the Calgary and Edmonton railway from 10 to 15 miles, containing one and a quarter million acres of splendid agricultural land. The first 20 miles of this stretch of country north and south, or from Scarlett's to the Lone Pine, is undulating prairie, free from brush, and well adapted for the growth of cereals, and it is said that roots wherever tried do well. From the Lone Pine north for 60 miles the country is park-like, dotted over with groves of spruce and poplar, and interspersed with numerous rivers, creeks, lakes, ponds, and hay sloughs. The principal rivers are the Red Deer, the Little Red Deer, the Medicine, and the Hindman—the first a mountain stream of 150 yards' average width, and of pure spring water. All the others originate in spring lakes along the line of the foothills, but some distance east of them. Many of these streams, or rivers as they would be called here, afford good water power, and sawmills are in active operation at every convenient centre. Up to within two years ago, when the railway was built, comparatively few settlers were to be found here, but its fame having gone forth settlers are fast crowding into it. Even from the States farmers are coming in great numbers to take up land here. Every male, if he be eighteen years of age, and a woman, if she be the sole head of a family, gets 160 acres of land from the government for nothing, and if the settler breaks up a few acres annually for the first three years, and builds a habitable house on the holding, he gets his patent papers, and the land belongs to himself and heirs forever. Millions of acres around here are lying waste waiting to be sold, so that a newcomer has plenty of scope from which he can take his own choice in selecting a quarter section, and if he wants more than a quarter section (160 acres) he can purchase any quantity alongside at 12s 6d per acre, payable in instalments, spread over eight or ten years. This section of country is not what is properly known as a ranching country. The snow, often falling to the depth of 18 inches, and remaining weeks together, endangers stock that are left to depend solely upon what they can procure for themselves, but for stock held in such numbers as can be housed or shelled and fed when occasion requires, it is unsurpassed on the continent. The grass is rich and abundant, the water is plentiful and pure, and wood for the erection of shedding and fencing is cheap and convenient. The fuel problem is solved by the fact that, in addition to this district being fairly well wooded in all parts, and the upper waters of all the rivers being lined with dense forests, extending far up among the foot hills of the Rocky mountains, the entire district is reported by the geological survey to be underlaid with coal of excellent quality, though no workings are yet opened. The Calgary and Edmonton trail is a beautiful natural road running through the centre of the Red Deer district for 80 miles. The recent expenditure of the Territorial assembly in bridging the streams has made it a very excellent traffic road. Branching off from the main road are numerous trails, convenient to any section of the district, and the firm smooth face of the country allows the settler to make a road with ease in any direction that suits his convenience. Towns are springing up at almost every railway station. Some of them already contain several thousands of a population. These town sites are all surveyed and laid out in uniform squares and streets before any houses are allowed to be built, so that uniformity and convenience in the embryo city is provided for and maintained. Some of these towns are being built where good sized timber, principally poplar, at present grows. The wood is being cut down and cleared off the streets, and around the houses groves and rows of trees are left standing, a row of nice comely trees being left along each side of the street. Thus those young towns will be well sheltered, and provided with excellent avenues and boulevards, which towns of the growth of centuries might envy.

Regarding Edmonton, he describes the situation of the town and enlarges on the necessity of a bridge across the Saskatchewan. He also describes the advantages that would have accrued from following the old Mackenzie survey, by way of Battleford and Edmonton. He says: "This route would have opened up a richer district of the country, and developed the resources of the Northwest Territories in a greater degree, but the object of the railway company in building their track was to obtain the nearest and speediest route between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, irrespective of the best mode of developing the agricultural resources of the Northwest. However, there are yet hopes that the Prince Albert railway will before long be extended to Edmonton, and, once that is so, the construction of a line through Peace Pass to British Columbia is only a matter of time. Edmonton has water communication to Winnipeg, and a number of steamboats carry passengers and freight during the summer months by way of the Saskatchewan and Lake Winnipeg, but the route is so circuitous, and so beset with bars of rock, rapids, and shallows, that navigation is very dangerous. As the resources of the Northwest are opened up, however, there is no doubt whatever that western enterprise will improve the way, and make navigation safe for fair-sized vessels, and then Edmonton will have direct communication with the Atlantic by way of Hudson's Bay."

He graphically describes his arrival at Edmonton station, the crowded platform, the important hotel runners, and finally his meeting with Donald McLeod, (whom by some strange chance he takes as a Sutherlandshire man, while really he is from the Lewis) who drove him over to town. The letter closes with a description of the process of ferrying across the Saskatchewan, which shows that the writer is a most keen observer and far more accurate than could reasonably be expected considering his rapid travelling and short stops. His next letter, which will doubtless treat of the Edmonton district, will be looked for with interest.

EDMONTON AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of the Edmonton agricultural society was held in the town hall on Saturday, 27th inst., about 12 members being present. The secretary, treasurer and a statement of the affairs of the society for the current year, showing a deficit of some fifty dollars, owing to the reduction made in the government grant which it had been assumed would be the same as last year. He was instructed to endeavor to make a collection sufficient to cover this amount.

The election of officers for the ensuing year was proceeded with, and resulted as follows: President, Thos. Hutchings; 1st vice-president, M. McCauley; 2nd vice-president, Geo. S. Long; directors, C. J. Harwood, Wm. Clarke, Donald Ross, R. Dunworth, John Cameron, D. C. Robertson, W. H. Stephens, Hugh McKay, Joseph Rye, Almond McLeod, John K. Brenton, Robert Kelly. The office of secretary-treasurer was left open until the next meeting on Friday, 28th February. John A. McDougall was appointed auditor for 1904.

Geo. S. Long gave a description of his trip to the east with the car of exhibits from this district. He spoke in high terms of the treatment received from the C. P. railway officials, who did everything possible to assist the delegates in their work.

It was decided that the society would hold a spring station show on Saturday 28th April, and that the annual show of stock would be held on Thursday, 10th July, showing the show of grains, vegetables, etc., until the fall.

A vote of thanks was given M. McCauley the retiring president of the association for his many efforts in the past to promote the interests of the society.

A vote of thanks was also given to the C. P. railway land department for the efficient manner in which the car of exhibits from this district was handled, and for the kindness extended to the delegate from this society accompanying same.

The president and secretary were appointed a committee to communicate with the C. P. railway re a reduction in the present freight rates from this point.

The meeting then adjourned.

DEDICATION OF THE BAPTIST CHURCH EDIFICE.

The Baptist church of Edmonton had a very enjoyable and encouraging day yesterday in their dedicatory services. The weather was all that could be desired, and the attendance at all the meetings most gratifying to those interested in the duties exercised. The first service was one of united prayer for the presence and blessing of the Master on the evening exercises throughout. Quite a goodly number was present and prayer was offered in three different languages, English, German and Gaelic.

Pastor H. E. Wise of the Calgary Baptist church, was the preacher of the morning. There was a full house present, many of the people coming from the country and from South Edmonton. The preacher took his topic from the book of Nehemiah, 2nd chapter and 12th verse, drawing an analogy between the building of the walls of Jerusalem and the upbuilding of the Christian church. In his discussion, which was very practical and good, he emphasized the following points: 1st Adequate effort, 2nd Divine assurance, 3rd Individual obligation, 4th Undaunted enthusiasm, 5th Sympathetic co-operation; and lastly unwavering fidelity.

In the afternoon, beginning at 2:30, there was a meeting of the Sunday school, which was addressed by Pastor Wise, in a very interesting and instructive way on the wordless book of pages "black," "red," "white" and "golden."

This was followed at 3 o'clock by an interesting, practical, appropriate and impressive discourse by Pastor George Hanna of the Methodist church, from Ephesians, 2nd chapter and 21st and 22nd verses, to a fairly filled house, in which he set forth in beautiful word picture the analogy between the literal building of the church edifice and the spiritual building spoken of in the text, in which he showed with great emphasis the importance of a regenerated church membership.

At four o'clock Pastor Miller of the Baptist church in Leduc and Habbitt had preached from 1st Kings, 8th chapter and 25th verse an impressive and appropriate discourse in the German language, there being about thirty Germans present. A large number of English speaking people also remained to listen to the discourse.

In the evening the house was filled to overflowing with an intelligent and eager audience representing all the denominations in town, and many from the country. Pastor Wise took as his topic the "Prodigal's return" and with great freshness and force described the seven steps in the progress of his return from his vagrancy to his father's home, namely: Soul consciousness, confession, conviction, confession, contrition, conversion, and consecration. The topic was handled with much skill by the preacher and practically applied with much faithfulness and point to prodigals of the present day away from their Father's House.

After the sermon a few plain remarks were made by Pastor McDonald as to the import and meaning of opening or dedicatory services such as were held throughout the day, discarding any idea of sanctity in the building, and maintaining that God's truth was the only sacred thing in the world. The dedicatory prayer was then offered by Pastor McDonald, in the English language, and in the German language by Pastor F. Miller.

At all three services offerings were taken for the building fund, which in all amounted to $100. People attending from a distance were entertained in a very magnificent way by the ladies of the church to both dinner and supper in the vestry, thus enabling not a few to attend all three services. These opening services are to be continued for the next three evenings, as announced in last week's Bulletin. Pastor D. G. McQueen is to preach this evening at 7:30 to be followed by addresses by Pastor H. E. Wise and others.

GENERAL NEWS.

A public banquet in honor of Lieutenant-governor Mackintosh will be given by the town of Moosomin on January 31st. Tickets $1.50.

Winnipeg Tribune: At the board of trade banquet in Toronto recently, Mr. Shaughnessy, vice-president of the C. P. R., contended that the C. P. R. rates were not higher than the rates on competing lines to the south. We do not know the character of the comparisons made, but we would like to ask if this statement is true how comes it that wheat at Neche, just south of the boundary line, has all season been worth five or six cents a bushel more than wheat of equal grade on the Canadian side at Regina. The wheat on both sides of the line is exported to Liverpool and both points are equidistant from the market. If there is no difference in the rates then how is the discrepancy accounted for? We pause for a reply.

Waterford Chronicle, Ireland: "We received a call from Mr. Geo. Leary, Canadian government emigration agent in Ireland, who has been visiting Waterford and neighborhood during the week. Mr. Leary is what the Americans call a hustler. In the interest of his government he is visiting all parts of Ireland, where there is a chance of doing emigration work, and reports prospects good for a considerable number to leave for Western Canada in the spring. Mr. Leary is a King's County man, who has lived in Canada the best part of his life, and who speaks from actual knowledge of the country. He says it is no longer a desolate land of plenty and promise. The government give 160 acres of clear land, ready for the plough, to each settler, and sell adjoining land at 10s. to 12s. per acre. This land is in the provinces of Manitoba, Alberta, Assiniboia, and Saskatchewan. Has railways, markets, and the conveniences of civilized life, with abundance of wood, coal, and good water, and a healthy and pleasant climate. He thinks if his countrymen could only experience one winter in the dry healthy west, they would say good bye to Ireland. After half an hour's talk with Mr. Leary about Western Canada anyone would be satisfied that the country for young men and families with small means lies west of Winnipeg."
